

The definition and the typology of motric outdoor activities

Virgil I. Ganea

“Babeş-Bolyai” University, Cluj-Napoca, Faculty of Sport and Physical Education

Abstract

This is the moment to define the motric outdoor activities as an important component in the tourism industry. After studying the tourism literature I've notice that all outdoor activities were treated globally and often mistaken with tourism activities. This fact made me try to define those motric and dynamic outdoor activities (agreement) and to separate them from other general forms of tourism activities. This paperwork is the consequence to some studies in the tourism and outdoor activities literature, and in the same time the result of practical activities. Starting from the tourism categories made by different authors, we have considered as necessary to make a classification of the motric outdoor activities. This type of outdoor activity made under the influence of water, air and sun, is a complex social phenomenon, decisive for the tourism business.

Keywords: motric activities, outdoor activities.