Abstract

Our study brings attention to doping substance consumption by young children. These children do not care that doping substances are on a list of forbidden drugs, and that these substances have harmful consequences for their health. The consumption of doping substances is hidden from children families and the educational authorities. At the same time, we aim to make the lege ferenda proposals concerning the protection of young children, for the amelioration of existing legal regulations concerning the use of doping substances in Romania and the amelioration of deontological rules for the Romanian educational system.
